The special receivers give bonds for the faithful performance of their duties. Kinds of money receivable.--All duties and taxes are payable in the current cash of the Republic, including notes of the Bank of France; collectors may also receive checks on the Bank of France or other banks, but at their own risk. Collectors--their duties in regard to direct taxes.--The collectors may not demand any sum from the taxpayers except by virtue of a list prepared by the director of direct taxes, declared executive by the prefect of the Department and made public by the mayor of the commune. Before January 1 in each year, the special receiver sends to the collectors of his arrondissement the lists of direct taxes which they are to collect. The direct taxes are payable by twelfths, and in some instances the taxpayers have the privilege of paying several installments at a time. The collectors are not only charged with the collection of the direct taxes and those of similar character, but they are also charged with the collection of all pecuniary fines and penalties, and in most localities fulfill the functions of receivers of the communes, hospitals, etc. They make payments from the public moneys received when the treasurer-payeur-general requires their cooperation. They pay the listed salaries, the pensions...
