

Postpositions in A Dravidian Language

By S.R. Mallasery

Mittal Publications, New Delhi, 1994. N.A. Condition: New. X+348pp This book presents for the first time a detailed description of postposition in a Dravidian Language within the framework of Transformational Generative Grammar proposed by Noam Chomsky. It explores the power of generative technique to explain the derivation of postpositions from the underlying sentence structure. The conceptual and empirical problems on derivation of postpositions are discussed in detail in the light of modern linguistic theory. An exhaustive study on Malayalam postpositions has not been done previously and hence the present work is promising. Traditional as well as modern view points on the derivation of postpositions are discussed. It defines postpositions clearly and provides a practical test to distinguish them from other parts of speech. They are classified on morphological principles and the derivation of each postposition has been shown in the light of traditional as well as modern transformational points of view. It has been shown that all postpositions is shown as superficial. It has also broken the traditional concept on case assignments and has shown that the nominals governed by postpositions are marked only by the deep structural verbs. This has great implications on the formulation of certain concepts in...
